PORT HAMILTON SEIZED.

How the Commander of H. M. Ship "Flying Fish" Stole a March on the Russians,

And Hoisted the Union Jack on the Latest British Possession on the Pacific Ocean.

An officer writes the following account of the voyage of H. M. Ship Flying Fish, and gives a graphic account of the seizure and hoisting of the British flag on Port Hamilton, which is now regarded as a strategetic point of vast importance. He says:

"We returned to Manilla for coals, etc., about April 23, and found two urgent telegrams from the Commander-in-Chief ordering us up to Hongkong at full speed. The only incident worth mentioning on the passage up was sighting a Russian ironclad (the Minin) just outside Hongkong. The captain sent for the first lieutenant and ordered him to clear for action, remarking, 'It's most unfortunate, but we must make a running fight of it.' You can imagine the 64 pounders (two in number) being loaded, hen coops, etc., shoved out of the way, and the poor old Fish trying to imagine herself a fighting ship. However, we were not molested, but got to our journey's end in peace and safety. On arrival at Hongkong we

we suddenly got orders to be ready for sea the next day. They filled us up below and on deck with mines, electric cables, and torpedo stores. During our refit Hooper and Lyne had gone through a ten day's Whitehead course, fondly imagining that they would have charge of some of the torpedo boats in case of war, but they were sent off all the same. The ship was provided with a tender in the shape of a big steam launch, purchased from the Hongkong government. Of course our orders were sealed, but it was an open secret that we were bound for Port Hamilton, which we eventually fetched, having only encountered one gale of wind en route, which compelled us to run inshore to rescue our tender. At Port Hamilton we found four or five small crafts and a lot of timber sent over from Nagasaki for the defence of the port. The flagship was at Nagasaki, so we found a senior officer, and at once set to work to lay down the mine and build the booms wherewith to block the smaller entrance. I was told off with the captain of the Marlin and an ex-gunner to fit and lay the mines; and thanks to the first-rate gunner and amateur torpedoist we got on first-rate. Gunn made us a plan and sounded out the mine field on a 20-inch scale, and we had

with commodious sail-rigged houses to shelter our mines and cables conveniently situated on a small island handy by the main entrance. One night we had a grand scare. A steamer was seen coming in about 9 p. m., and on being boarded proved to be a Russian transport, put in (as the Captain, a naval officer, said) on account of leaky boilers. He (the Captain) also wanted to land and look round; but as he might have had a Russian ensign in his pocket, was advised not to until he had called on the senior officer. Meanwhile all the five small craft and our own powerful vessel had been cleared for action in accordance with private signals which we had made, and in the dead of night three parties were landed to hoist Union Jacks, so that in the morning the summits of the three islands were decorated with our glorious flag, and a sentry looking after each of them. The Ruskie came on board in the morning and on the latest British possession, and not getting much change out of him, he and a Japanese man-of-war cleared out to inform their respective governments, and we were left to continue our operations in peace for a day or two. Another transport arrived two days after with more mines and cables; so all hands had plenty to do, what with the booms, coaling, landing stores, etc. But our proud position was not of very long continuance, for one morning the Champion arrived with orders for us to clear immediately for Nagasaki. She brought up King-Harman, the flag-ship's torpedo lieutenant, so I was kicked out of my billet more quickly. However, I had the satisfaction to find that he approved of and adopted my plan of laying out the mines, and extended it with the new gear brought up from Hongkong. We sailed for Nagasaki next morning in company with with an admiral and a Corean embassy on board. The embassy had descended on us to object to the annexation of the Corean king's dominions. Would you be surprised to learn that the gunboats run us hull down in about five minutes, in spite of a strong fair wind and full steam and sail? However, we managed to get in first, as John Chinaman 'no cares' to go into harbor in the dark. The admiral didn't give us much time to enjoy the delights of Nagasaki, as he shoved off to Hongkong the second day; and a nice old time we had of it, digging out against the monsoon, with lower yards and topmasts down, the temperature going up daily, till now it is only 10 degrees below Hades. We are at present in Kowloon dock undergoing a spell of purgatory. The smell, heat, mosquitoes, and the hammering of 1000 Chinamen combined is enough to drive one to drink or a lunatic asylum. The guns have disappeared, and the deck-houses once more grace the upper deck. Of our future movements we know nothing; but now peace seems assured, the plan of our commissioning the Glen Ogle, an armed cruiser here, is abandoned.

The English Privy Council has refused to issue a license allowing the landing of cattle from Canada at Greenock.

A cable despatch says that Hon. Mr. Chapleau, Secretary of State, has consulted Dr. Guyat, a celebrated expert in Paris, who is confident of curing him.

The saloon and hotel keepers of Hamilton, Ont., have advanced the price of whiskey to 10c. a glass. The city has a population of over 40,000, and there are but 120 licensed liquor dealers in the city.

ENGLISH POLITICS.

Antagonism Between Liberals and Radicals Increasing—Gladstone's Movements.

A London cable says the centrifugal forces at work in the Liberal party were sharply defined in two speeches within a week by Mr. Foster at Bradford and by Mr. Chamberlain at Hull. The antagonism between the moderate Liberals and Radicals is daily growing. It adds importance to the question whether Mr. Gladstone is likely to retain the leadership of the party. Mr. Gladstone has sailed in Mr. Brassey's yacht for a three weeks' trip to Norway, Dr. Andrew Clark accompanying him. The Times treats the voyage as a matter of national concern.

THE ELECTORAL PROGRAMME.

The negotiations between Liberal leaders in relation to the formation of an electoral programme for uniting all sections of the party have been decisively ruptured. Meetings which have taken place between Gladstone, the Marquis of Hartington and Chamberlain have shown no common platform possible. Chamberlain declined to abandon the radical propaganda of graduated taxation of property, free education, laborers' allotments at low rents, or the scheme of home rule. Declarations made by him in his speech at Hull followed the rupture with other Liberal leaders and were taken as an open manifesto that he had unfurled the flag of leadership of Radicals, and that henceforth he would be free from the control of Gladstone or the Whig party. The anxiety of moderate Liberals for the return of Gladstone to active political leadership becomes more intense. There may be confusion worse confounded without him. Herbert Gladstone informs inquirers after his father's health that he has recovered the full use of his voice. Gladstone tells his friends he is undertaking a yachting cruise for the purpose of establishing his vocal strength so he may be fitted to perform prolonged platform work. In the meantime, he says, any strain affects his voice, and he declines to even hold converse except of short duration. An unbiased opinion prevails that the ex-Premier, notwithstanding the efforts he is making to add to his strength, will be unable to take a prominent part in the electoral campaign.

A PETRIFIED SOLDIER

The Wonderful Discovery Made in Sackett's Harbor, N. Y.

Sackett's Harbor has a real curiosity in the shape of the petrified body of a soldier. Last Tuesday a detail of soldiers of the 12th Regiment was excavating on the scene of the historic battle-ground of 1812, for the purpose of erecting an iron flag-staff, occasioned by the war department. A depth of about seven feet had been reached when the excavators struck what they supposed was a rock, so hard as to defy their efforts. The excavation was then enlarged and the party was amazed to discover that they had come upon the petrified body of an English soldier. The body was perfect in every particular, except on the left shoulder where the pick of the excavator had chipped off a piece about four inches long, but which piece can easily be put in place. The petrified form was taken out of the ground and was found to weigh 1000 pounds. The wonderful discovery caused much excitement, and a party of Watertown gentlemen at once made an offer of $2500 for the prize, but the offer was refused. The body is on exhibition here, and will be kept here till August 1st, when it will be sent to the Smithonian Institute at Washington, D. C.

The Reconstructed Cabinet.

The Toronto Mail fully appreciates the gravity of the political situation at Ottawa, and in an editorial on the 5th inst., referred to the position thus: "A short period of less than five months will bring ministers before parliament once more with the general election nearer by a year. A change has already taken place in the Cabinet, and other changes will certainly take place before long. The serious duty of deciding on the fate of Riel will be nominally in the hands of the Ministry of Justice, but really will be an affair of the cabinet. We assume that the decision will be arrived at according to the traditions of British justice. The settlement of war debts, war claims and war disputes will also require cabinet meetings at an early period, because in these cases long delay would cause needless irritation, it is obvious that some necessary delay must take place. The position of the ministers is not an enviable one just now, for hard work and grave responsibilities have fallen on them at an unusual time, and we do not see any signs that the opposition press are disposed to be less unfair and ungenerous than usual."

Ought to Have Had a Happier Fate.

Just how great a fall Sir Charles Dilke has had, or has appeared to have had, will appear from the following complimentary sentences in a leading article in the Times: "The banquet given to Sir Charles Dilke at the Reform Club on Saturday was a fit acknowledgement of the important services he has rendered to his own party and to the country by his management of the Redistribution bill. The bill from first to last has been very largely his work. He was entrusted with the task of collecting and arranging the information on which it was based. This done, he had a principal hand in preparing the original draft, and in changing it afterwards into a form which both political parties would accept." The man who thus impressed himself on the political affairs of England ought to have had a happier fate. But "the gods are just, and of our pleasant vices make whips to scourge us."

Remarkable Train Fall Mall.

LONDON, Aug. 8.—An address has been gotten up by the women of England thanking the Pall Mall Gazette for its recent articles on London vice, and praising the paper's course as a service in the cause of morality and social purity. The address has 450 signatures, including those of Lady Ashburton, Lady Mount Temple and Countess Portsmouth. The Pall Mall Gazette has weakened its position by an article deprecating the raising of the age of consent in girls to eighteen on the ground that such a law would destroy means of livelihood of a host of young girls already launched upon an immoral life.

Walter Laycock, a native of Woodstock, Ontario, recently residing near San Bernardo, California, committed suicide recently by shooting himself with a revolver while temporarily insane.

THE WIDE WORLD.

THIS DAY'S DESPATCHES

The Army and Navy Thanked.

Special to THE TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 14.—In the House of Lords this afternoon the Marquis of Salisbury, in moving a vote of thanks to the army and navy for their recent services in Egypt, paid a strong tribute to Wolseley and General Graham, and other officers and soldiers and marines who took part in the Khartoum expedition, for the valor, perseverance and courageous spirit they displayed in the arduous work of the desert campaign. The prime minister praised in unmeasured terms the valor and devotion of General Gordon and of General Earle and Stewart, and of other officers and men who lost their lives during the Soudan wars and Billing expressed confidence with their relatives and friends. Baron Carrington, moderate Liberal, warmly seconded the motion which was adopted. It was noteworthy that not a single Liberal leader was present in the House of Lords during the above proceedings; their absence was much remarked and was considered as a demonstration against the motion.

Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, Chancellor of the Exchequer, made a similar motion in the Commons.

The Cholera Panic in Marseilles.

Special to THE TIMES.

MARSEILLES, Aug. 14.—The cholera panic increases daily; the average departures from Marseilles by railway alone has already increased by two thousand per day. As an instance of the laxness with which the Marseilles sanitary authorities perform their duties the case of the captain of an English vessel lying in this port may be mentioned. The captain's daughter died of cholera aboard the ship. He at once notified the authorities and requested a disinfection of the vessel. Although at noon to-day, 30 hours had elapsed since the girl's death, no official action has yet been taken concerning the event by the authorities.

The Peru Revolt—The Pall Mall Gazette's Articles.

Special to THE TIMES.

LIMA, Aug. 14.—Trujillo was occupied by the government troops without resistance, the Montaneros having retired into the interior. A fight took place at Sarcosa on the 9th inst., between the government troops, numbering fifty, and a party of mountaineers. The latter were defeated, and eight officers taken prisoners.

The Cambon has been reproducing the articles from the Pall Mall Gazette and in its comments thereon, says that the same immoral practices are carried on in Lima. The matter has been taken up by the government. The accusation is however, ridiculed by the rest of the papers.

The Plague in France.

Special to THE TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 14.—General DeCourcy telegraphs as follows: We have fired our headquarters at Haiphong during the prevalence of cholera. There were 178 deaths from cholera yesterday in Haiphong and sixty-six persons were down with it to-day. We have a large number of volunteer nurses to care for the sick. There is an excellent feeling among the troops.

Dufferin's Diplomacy

Special to THE TIMES.

CALCUTTA, Aug. 13.—Lord Dufferin is actively engaged in strengthening the friendship of the Indian chiefs. He will give a grand durbar in November. All the dignitaries of Central Asia are expected to attend.

Cholera in Odessa.

Special to THE TIMES.

VIENNA, Aug. 13.—Dispatches from Odessa state that several cases of sickness resembling cholera, have occurred in Odessa and suburbs, and that in consequence all arrivals from Marseilles are prohibited.

A Scotch Tory Candidate Flogged.

LONDON, Aug. 13.—Mr. Francis, the gentleman who yesterday flogged Mr. Pearce of the ship-building firm of John Elder & Bros, for alleged betrayal of the former's daughter, to-day instituted a criminal action against Mr. Pearce. Yesterday the latter explained the affair to a reporter of the Pall Mall Gazette by saying that the charge of seduction was false, and that it was a case of blackmail of the peculiarly bad kind. For this statement Francis brought the suit. He says he thought Pearce had done him wrong sufficiently and in betraying his daughter under the guise of friendship, without adding the insult of designating him a blackmailer. Pearce is a rich conservative, and had been selected by the tories to stand as their candidate for Glasgow in the coming election. Mr. Francis is a gentleman of respectable standing in society, and is a member of the government civil service, being an inspector of customs.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Ten years of Milwaukee, just completed, gives the city a population of 158,305. In 1880 the population was 115,578, the gain in five years is 42,727, or 8557 annually. This, certainly, is a remarkable growth, considering the proximity of Milwaukee to Chicago.

Honorable Edward Blake's income from his practice, is placed by those who are in a position to know it to be correct, at $20,000. On the score of prospective remuneration he is a heavy loser by having anything to do with politics.

Worry and overwork have produced their usual effect upon Mr. Buchanan, novelist and playwright. He is now seriously ill, having broken down in the haste to get rich, though it is hoped that a short rest will serve to recuperate his exhausted energies. He is only fourty-four years old.

Mr. John Hoen, of Montreal, who was army telegraph operator with the Northwest Field Forces, makes an excellent suggestion in a letter to the Gazette. He says it would be a good policy to bring Crowfoot, the Blackfoot chief who remained loyal, and who is probably the most powerful chief in the Northwest, eastward on a trip to our large cities. Not only Crowfoot, we think, but other chiefs might be given a trip east at Government expense, with special pains to bring them into situations most likely to impress them with the "size" of the white man.

In an article in which it points out the duty of the hour, now that the trouble in the Northwest is over, the Winnipeg Manitoban says: This country was never more completely under the domination of law and order than at present. It never was a safer place for immigrants. Not in the best patrolled street of the Empire's capital will life and property be more secure than they will hereafter be in the most distant districts of the Northwest. But it may cost us some trouble to secure general credence for this fact. Hence the importance of setting about our task at once.

There is evidently a storm of huge dimensions arising in Quebec over the conviction of Riel. Several of the ministers and their friends are at a loss to know how best to meet the coming storm. The Conservatives of that province persuaded their people that Riel had been badly treated by the Mackenzie government in 1874; the same parties now cannot very well undertake to persuade the same people that he is a scoundrel who deserves to be hanged. The general impression now is that Riel will not be executed. A well known politician has stated that while Sir John could not pacify the Bleus if Riel was executed, he could trust to Messrs. Bowell, White, Clarke, and others to keep the Orangemen in line if the rebel leader was pardoned. The Orange Tories, it is believed, can be relied upon to support Sir John in any event, while the Bleus are not so easily handled, and may bolt if Riel is not reprieved. It is believed that the changes in the law secured by Mr. Blake, when he was Minister of Justice, will preclude the Governor-General from granting a pardon of his own motion, and independently of his Ministers, so that whatever is done with Riel the government will be directly responsible.

Mr. Erastus Wiman, the Canadian millionaire of New York, who in 1857 began his career as a street newsboy for the Toronto Globe, and to which office he was an attache until he became a member of the mercantile agency firm of Messrs. Dunn, Wiman & Co., entertained the Canadian Press Association in a princely manner last week. The excursionists numbered over one hundred. Free transportation was accorded them over the elevated railways; the magnificent new Canadian Club was thrown open to them; the principal event being a grand dinner at the Manhattan Beach Hotel, where the Canadians met their brethren of the New York press. Canadians as well as Americans in New York, vied with each other in extending their hospitality to the visiting Canuck quill drivers. Mr. Wiman, notwithstanding his great success as a financier, has not yet forgotten the friends of his youth nor the land that gave him birth. He, along with a few other Canadians, are rapidly forging to the front as leaders of all the leading projects floated in the great city of New York.

HON. THOMAS WHITE.

If ever a person worked hard and indefatigably to attain a prominent position in the political and mercantile councils of this country, that individual is the Hon. Thomas White, now Canadian Minister of the Interior. Apart from politics the new minister has always been held in high esteem for his many sterling good qualities. It is therefore not at all surprising that he is receiving the congratulations, not only of his political friends, but likewise those of many who on political grounds have always stood in hostile attitude to him, and especially so a considerable portion of the Liberal press. The Montreal Gazette, with which it has been known that he was associated for a number of years, now announces that Mr. White will no longer be a contributor to its columns, nor in any way directly or indirectly guide its political opinions hereafter. For many years the Minister of the Interior edited and controlled the Peterborough, Ontario, Review, then the Hamilton Spectator. It was in the "ambitious city" that the future minister began to develop his talents as a platform speaker. During that city's railway crusade in the famous "battle of the guages" Mr. White along with others—many of whom have long since crossed that bourne from whence no traveler returns—rendered his city yeoman service. The Quebec English-speaking Conservatives desiring to be more fully andably represented through the press than they had hitherto been, opened negotiations with Mr. White and his brother Richard, with the view of introducing their securing control of the Montreal Gazette. The Messrs. White removed thence some fifteen years since. The following narrative of the new Minister, as related by the Gazette, will be of interest to many of our readers:

Mr. White is not unknown to the Canadian public. As far back as 1852 he took an active interest in public affairs, entering then, after an adequate mercantile training, upon the career of journalism, and with the exception of two years, during which he represented the Ontario Government (during the John Sandfield Macdonald regime) in Great Britain, he has for thirty-three years past attended every session of Parliament. Indeed, no man in public life, save Sir John Macdonald, has had so intimate a personal acquaintance with the political and commercial affairs of Canada for thirty and more years as Mr. White. Though yet a comparatively young man in years, he is old in politics. It was in 1867 that he made his first venture for Parliamentary honors, entering the lists against the colleague of the redoubtable and respected "Joe" Rymal, in South Wentworth, where he was defeated by four votes. The ill-luck of that contest pursued Mr. White for some years afterwards, his next venture in Prescott county in 1874 resulting in his defeat by five votes, and his candidature in Montreal West in the fall of the same year being rejected by seven votes. The total majority against him in the three elections was, therefore, only sixteen. Recognizing his past services, his oratorical ability, and his popular parts, he was in the general election of 1878 invited by the Conservatives of Cardwell to contest that constituency, and was returned by a considerable majority, largely increased in the subsequent election in 1882. Mr. White is, therefore a comparatively young parliamentarian, although concerned in public affairs for so long a time. He has seen enter public life every man who now occupies a seat in the Commons of Canada, with the exception of Sir John Macdonald. He has been the personal friend, in spite of party differences, of every man who has sat in the Assembly of Canada before or since the Union for thirty years past, and he has gained by personal observation a knowledge of public affairs and an acquaintance with public men such as it is given to few to attain.

It is to be hoped that Mr. White will give his attention at as early a date as possible to the Dominion lands in this province that are under his control. Not only Mr. White, but his able deputy, Mr. Burgess—both journalists of great experience—must be aware of the injury such a policy as has been pursued in the past inflicts on this province. Now that a new administration has assumed control of its affairs, it is but just and reasonable to suppose that a vigorous policy will characterize the actions of the Department of the Interior hereafter.

Ottawa Liberals do not regard the political contest in East Durham as hopeful. Pretty generally they are opposed to the Liberal candidature, and the local Liberal organ there, it is noted, has never mentioned the nomination of Mr. Paxton as the Liberal candidate. Whatever may be the cause of this attitude is unexplained, but it certainly exists. It is even said that strong efforts were made from Ottawa at the close of the session to prevent Mr. Paxton getting the nomination, as he was regarded as a weak candidate. The prejudices against him appear to be based upon private disagreements some years ago with many Ottawa people rather than upon any personal shortcomings.

The jury of the Antwerp exhibition have recommended the award of a gold medal for Canadian Pacific cereals exhibit, the Canadian government being recommended a diploma d'honneur. In addition the following certificate was recorded in regard to the Canadian Pacific Northwest wheat samples:—"The commission of the jury entrusted with the inspection of cereals considers itself in duty bound before proceeding to indicate the award it has to recommend, to bear testimony to the beauty and quality of the cereals exhibited by Canada, which are undoubtedly superior to any of those exhibited by the other nations."

CANADIAN MILITARY TACTICS APPROVED IN ENGLAND.

The Army and Navy Gazette in the printing of Gen. Middleton's unpublished dispatches, addressed to the Canadian Minister of Militia, characterizes it as a model of clearness and modesty, telling a tale so well that but little comment thereon is necessary. The rising at one time caused the greatest anxiety throughout the British Empire, and threatened to destroy many years of patient attempts at civilization, by embroiling the government with the whole of the Indian population of the Northwest. The earlier efforts to cope with it were only very partially successful. Outlying posts were cut off, many prisoners carried away, one or two serious repulses inflicted upon the Canadian forces, and the beginning of a bloody, expensive and inglorious Indian war seemed to stare the Dominion in the face. The insufficiency of transport, the difficult nature of the country, and the want of organization of matters military, to which General Lizard called attention so vigorously a year or two ago, all seemed to point to difficulties likely to tax the resources of Canada in no ordinary degree. Thanks, however, to the energy, skill and determination of General Middleton and a small force, under 800 strong, the clouds have been dissipated, and the peace of the Northwest, we trust, permanently secured. Although full credit is given in the dispatch to all concerned, and most generous mention made by name of those who, as General Middleton gracefully puts it, came "under his personal notice," it is evident from the plain facts so simply told that to the commander is due no ordinary share of the laurels of victory. A force, gallant though it showed itself, so heterogeneous in its constitution and so unskilled in the ordinary art of war, and much less in the guerilla fighting in which its enemy was expert, would have been "nowhere" without the impulse of a masterly hand, on whose strength, skill, and courage unlimited reliance could be placed. On the other hand, the care and sympathy for the humblest of his soldiers is shown by the General's unvarnished account of the efforts made to rescue a single wounded man, who unfortunately had died from his injuries before the kindly aid could reach him. Both in Europe and America the conduct of the small but ardnous campaign was spoken of most highly by those whose knowledge of its difficulties entitled their utterances to respectful hearing. Its success is mainly due to the excellent disposition of the little force employed, and General Middleton has added another leaf to the laurels so highly earned in the Eastern campaign. The conduct of the officers and men employed has been only what might have been expected from so grand a race as the Canadians. It only shows what the Dominion is capable of, and how thoroughly, in case of emergency, it could hold its own. At the same time, it is to be hoped that the success of the recent operations will be an incentive rather to improve the splendid material at the country's command, and to perfect an organization by which it may be utilized at need than to rest on the hard-earned laurels, and to think that peace is to reign for evermore. The ardent and rising sympathy between England and her children should also induce such action, if only to show the world that each item in the comity of the English nations can contribute, if necessary, its full share to the defence of the world-wide Empire of the Queen.

Both the Toronto party organs are mistaken in speaking of Lord Randolph Churchill as the "accepted" or "selected" of the English Tories. That volatile apostle of tin and tinsel forced himself upon the party, to the dismay and disgust of the reputable portion of it; and the Standard, which is at once the ablest and most respected English Conservative daily, merely voices the protest of leading clubs when it scarifies the man who sacrifices his party and his friends for a passing notoriety. But who ever knew good to come out of a Marlborough!

Several prominent eastern Canadian journals prophesy that "ere long" we shall have another and possibly a more serious insurrection to contend with in the Northwest. Commenting on the possibility of such an event The Week says: It is at least a curious coincidence that the prognostication is echoed by some of those who have been at the front, and who are not by any means alarmists. The reason assigned is, not that the half-breeds or Indians are threatening, but that white malcontents, government agents, commissariat contractors, and speculators made a tremendous haul out of the late emeute, and it is feared they are likely to foment another when opportunity serves.

The capital invested in the dairy business in the United States is computed to be over 200 million dollars, and to employ 700,000 men and nearly 1,000,000 horses. A milk producer, who ought to know, says that the average cow yields about 450 gallons of milk a year, giving for the country a total product of 6,750,000,000 gallons. Twelve cents a gallon is a fair price to estimate the value of of this milk at—a total return of $810,000,000 to the dairy farmers. Fifty per cent. of the milk is made into cheese and butter. It takes 27 pounds of milk to make one of butter, and about ten pounds of milk to make one of cheese. There is the same amount of nutrition in 3½ pounds of milk that there is in one of beef. A fat steer furnishes 50 per cent. of boneless beef, but it would require about 24,000 steers, weighing 1,000 pounds each, to produce the same amount of nutrition as the annual milk product does.

MULLEIN LEAVES IN CONSUMPTION.

What the Doctors Say—Of Value in the Earlier Stages—How Used.

[Scientific American.]

Dr. Quinlan, of Dublin, read before the International Medical congress at Copenhagen last year an interesting paper on the medicinal qualities of the mullein. It has attracted widespread attention, and among the more recent articles confirmatory of Dr. Quinlan's statements is one by Dr. Wilfert, of Cincinnati, which appears in the last number of The Lancet and Clinic of that city. From the results obtained in 127 cases of pulmonary consumption treated by Dr. Quinlan with mullein alone, he draws the following conclusions, which are condensed from his original article, viz.:

1. In the earlier and pretubercular stage of pulmonary consumption, mullein has a weight-increasing and curative power greater than that of cod liver oil, and equal to that of Russian koumiss.

2. In cases where tubercles are well established or cavities exist, the mullein has great power in relieving cough—a great boon to consumptives, whose weak stomachs too frequently can not tolerate the usual cough remedies.

3. Phthisical diarrhœa is completely obviated by the mullein.

4. Mullein has no power or effect on the night sweats of consumption, which should be combated by atropia sulphate.

The method of using the mullein, which originated among the Irish peasantry and was adopted by Dr. Quinlan just as he found it, is as follows: Three ounces of the fresh green leaves, or about ten times that much of the dried, are boiled in a pint of fresh cow's milk. After boiling a moment the infusion is allowed to stand and "sipe" for ten minutes, when it is strained, sweetened and drunk while warm. This quantity is taken twice or three times a day. It is generally much relished by the patients, who regard it as a pleasant article of diet rather than as a medicine. The smoke of the mullein inhaled into the respiratory passages relieves irritation and spasmodic cough.

Dr. Wilfert states that he has followed Dr. Quinlan's method in twenty cases of undoubted pulmonary phthisis, all of them more or less advanced, and all improved during the administration of mullein, no other drugs being used. These results are certainly very encouraging, and should be followed up.

Instruction at West Point.

[Washington Cor. New York World.]

Adjt. Gen. Drum, of the army, thinks that there is room for reform in the system of education at West Point. He would throw open the school to a larger number of students and have only a picked number of them actually appointed into the army. He believes in giving a large number of students a military education and then in sending them back to civil life, where they can be useful as military professors at the schools throughout the country in helping to keep up the various militia organizations, and in case of an emergency could be relied upon for organizing and handling troops. The present system at West Point has a tendency to make a boy over into a machine, and to give him a false notion of his position in life.

Their after life in the army tends to make them creatures of routine, excessively timid and conservative. All of the great generals of the war were West Point graduates who had left the army and gone back to civil life. Through their absence from the army and in their contact with people they had acquired that broadening of the mind and knowledge of men which afterward made them successful generals.

An Interesting Volume.

[Atlanta Constitution.]

Julius I. Brown, of Atlanta, owns a manuscript book of the Irish poet Tom Moore, containing the original text of his most famous poems in his own handwriting. The book is bound in white leather, now yellow with age. The handwriting of the famous poet is a diminutive little chirography of almost infinitesimal letters and so marked with interlineations and erasures as to be deciphered with difficulty. The interesting little volume shows what a slow and laborious process poetic composition was with the smoothest of English poets.

There is a lesson of deep value in the tireless literary polishing seen in this book. Endless forms of expression and changes are tried. The poet never wearied in perfecting his phrases. He tried and tried again, frequently remodeling entirely his lines. It is immensely interesting to see what process of construction his immortal poems went through. We have the whole thing in this book. Mr. Brown places a high value on this relic that can not be duplicated.

Thought It Was Dishonest.

[English Paper.]

The library of a certain illiterate but wealthy Bostonian was chosen for him by a cultivated friend. Months after it was seen his shelves he presented himself at the towering passion at the booksellers. He had discovered an edition of Elizabeth Barrett's poems to be imperfect because "Browning" was omitted from the title page. The bookseller, who prided himself on the selection he had made, explained in vain that it was the rare "first edition" which was published before she became Mrs. Browning—a book with few duplicates in America. But the Bostonian was not satisfied with the explanation, and departed more angry than ever.

A New Cable Car.

[Chicago Herald.]

A San Francisco has invented a cable car for street railways that dispenses with the grip, does not wear the cable, and secures the same results as the old method with between third the propelling power. His plan consists of a succession of large and small wheels inside the car, over which the cable passes.

JEWS AS FARMERS.

THREE HUNDRED RUSSIAN EXILES IN SOUTH JERSEY.

Visit to the Colony Near Vineland—How the Families Pay for Their Homes—Interviewing a Member of the Community.

[Vineland (N. J.) Correspondent.]

The colony of Jewish refugees from Russia established three years ago on 1,100 acres of land near here, purchased by the Hebrew immigration society of New York and the Jewish society of London, has outlived the hardship of its first years, and is beginning to be a prosperous community. The land is a rolling sea of little scrub oaks four or five feet high, punctuated with erect dead pine trunks. Scattered here and there among the hills and hollows of the tract, the sixty frame shanties in which the colonists live are hardly noticeable. The little patches of field, on which the grubbing up of the oaks has exposed a light, sandy soil that every breeze raises in a cloud of dust, seem more occasional scratchings up of the face of the barrens. There are no street, no church, no stores, mills or factories, nor any other indication except the scattered houses that 300 people are there.

Since the first year, when all lived together in barracks, the land has been divided. Each family has about fifteen acres. Each plat cost the societies from $300 to $400, and the occupant is to pay for it one-half the cost. They must pay 3 per cent. a year upon this price, and this interest is credited upon the principal, so that they practically have thirty-three years in which to pay for their homes. Under this arrangement the colonists take more interest in their work, and although they were all natives of cities, tradesmen, artisans, and mechanics, and knew little of farming, they have got their small clearings into a fair state of cultivation, and will this year raise an abundant crop of strawberries, raspberries, and blackberries.

These small fruits are all the land can be made to produce profitably. Finding the colony in the wilderness is like looking for a four-leaved clover. A query addressed to the open door of a whitewashed shanty apparently several miles from anywhere recently: "Is there a Russian Jew colony anywhere around?" brought out a flaxen-haired man, a dark wife, with a red handkerchief hood fashion on her head, and two children. Smiles were the prominent characteristic of the group. The man talked English. The rest jabbered.

"Ye-es a, there-es est."

"Are you one of them?"

"Ye-es a," with a double-sized smile.

"How are you getting along nowadays?"

"Coo-com a-es an' see," said the wife and children repeated the invitation in Russian, while the man led off the visitor's horse to a convenient tree. Inside the one chair was carefully wiped with a towel before the visitor was allowed to sit down. The man sat on a bench and contemplated a bowl of milk and some bread on the table. He hoped the gentleman would excuse-a him if he went on with his dinner, he had to get back to work-a. While the wife and children smiled contentedly with reflected satisfaction of hunger, and neighbors peered in at the door and window, between bites and smiles, in his slow, uncertain English the man said the sixty families in the colony were getting along first-rate now, with the money they got from their berries and from working for other berry growers in summer and chopping wood in winter. They liked the country "ver-a moo-ooch; oh, so moo-ooch better than-een Russia." They were all going to vote as soon as they got their papers. They have no church, but the rabbi holds services around in the houses every Saturday. Their children all go to a district school. The wife-neighbors jabbered apparently approving comments as this information was given. When the bread and milk and the information gave out, the whole party stood outside and smiled as the stranger drove away, the wife insisting on shaking hands as she said:

"Coo-com-a-a age-e-en!"

Further on a slender, dark colonist, with a bronze like Villain Macavi in "Called Back," said he was a cloakmaker, and couldn't farm; so he got cloaks from Philadelphia and made them up. All he and his family could earn was $1.50 a week. Their rent was $1.50 a week, and they had to live on the balance. Their clothes were almost rags, and they displayed on several occasions during the progress of the palace of Wales were in reality most appropriate and expressive of loyalty. Black was the color of the revolutionists of Ireland, and a sarcastic status "that the arms of Ireland was a king on throned in majesty in a field sable."

Some rivals are disposed of by making them into cement for mending glass and porcelain.

The streets of the national capital are shaded by 60,000 trees.

CITY AND PROVINCE.

—The large cranberry marshes on the Fraser river are on fire.

—The Hook & Ladder Company was out for a drill on Thursday evening.

—Fifty-three prisoners were in the city gaol this afternoon.

Rand Bros., Real Estate and Insurance Agents, Victoria and New Westminster. *

—A public wharf is to be constructed at Langley. It will supply a long felt want.

—The canneries on the Fraser, having used up their material, are preparing to shut down for the season.

—Nanaimo Foresters' Home celebrate with an annual picnic to-morrow. Archery and sports.

—The weather on the mainland is fine for harvest work, which is well advanced. Crops are reported as splendid.

—Passenger and freight traffic is decidedly on the increase at New Westminster.

—The Olympian brought 80 tons of bonded goods and 40 tons of Dominion merchandise to-day.

—Burns & Co. have shipped one of the "Little Brantford" binders to Mr. C. Dougherty, Clinton, one of the judges at the late reaping match.

—The international cricket match between Canada and the United States resulted in favor of the Canadians, by a score of 144 to 105.

—The Reds have sent an invitation to the Amities of this city, asking them to stop at Seattle on their return from Portland and play a third match.

—H. M. S. Conquest and Cormorant are on the way from England to the Pacific station. The former vessel relieves H. M. S. Constance.

—A County Court will be held at Chilliwhack on the 27th inst. The appeal against the judgment in the Bartlett case will then be heard.

—Dr. Jones, the celebrated dentist of this city, finds his practice increasing very rapidly. First-class work tells the tale every time.

H. M. S. Wild Swan leaves the China station for here and it is fully expected that H. M. S. Constance will be placed under orders for China.

—The steamer Eliza Anderson has gone on the gridiron, in North Seattle, and will undergo some needed repairs. She will be ready to resume her Victoria route on Saturday.

—The hours of the Nanaimo Telegraph office have been extended to 10 o'clock at night. The Government have justly increased the salary of the operation to remunerate him for the extra hours.

—The Olympian will, after to-day's trip lay up for three days, the Starr taking her place. The officers of the Olympian will come over on the Starr to-morrow and spend a few holidays in Victoria.

—It is understood that the customs department will prohibit the importation of extracts from the Pall Mall Gazette's last sensation, which have been published in pamphlet form by a Chicago firm, on the ground that they come under the section of the act prohibiting obscene literature.

—The nine to represent the Amity club of this city has not yet been definitely chosen. Borthwick will probably take the place of T. Baker who was disabled as pitcher the other day. Borthwick is recognized as the best all-round player of the club who leave for Portland on the 23d inst.

—A Tacoma paper of the 13th says: Captain Joseph Howe, of the bark Isabel, now lying at the wharf, was agreeably surprised yesterday by a visit from Edward Howe and family, who is a brother of the captain. They were visiting in Victoria, and hearing of the bark's arrival, planned this pleasant surprise.

—Canadian Pacific Railway traffic receipts for the week ending the 21st ult. showed an increase over those of the corresponding period last year of $124,000. Traffic receipts of the Grand Trunk railway showed a decrease of $38,000 for the week ending August 1st as compared with the corresponding week in 1884.

—Portland Oregonian: On Friday of next week the Victoria baseball club, the only nine which has been able to defeat the Portlands so far this season, will arrive here and play two games with the Portland champions. They will be accompanied by an excursion party numbering 100 or more.

—Law in this province is a delusion. Our legal Solomons who make the law say "a notice on the Court House door shall be a sufficient notice of adjournment." But the jurors summoned to attend are not allowed for their lost time. This is an anomaly that should be rectified.

—Messrs. Hall and Goepel, agents for the Cunard line in this city have been advised officially of the safe arrival in Liverpool of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Jones and family. The Etruria on which they embarked from New York made the quickest passage on record being 6 days, 5 hours and 35 minutes.

—The Guardian takes THE TIMES special correspondent to task for his statements in reference to the quantity of salmon to be packed this year and cost of same. The Guardian adds that unless prices advance even at present cost of packing the seasons operations will be a profitless one. Salmon at one cent each is undoubtedly hard pan prices.

—The government organ has assured the public that the appointment to the principalship of the girls' school was made unknown to the Provincial Secretary. Now this is more than the honorable gentleman can stand, for the patronage of the New Westminster being his prerogative, it will now be in order for him to become refractory and assert his right to be consulted.

—Mr. G. Gowen returned to-day from Seattle, and reported that he was unable to secure the services of a pitcher for the coming match with Portland. Mr. Borthwick will probably pitch on that occasion. Although the "Amities" feel that their chance of winning is lessened through the loss of Mr. Baker, they are still game enough to play for all they are worth.

—List of letters detained for postage, at the Victoria post office: Harper Bros., New York; Northwest News Pub. Co., Portland; Mrs. W. E. Stafford, Seattle; Mrs. J. Albertson, Catskill, N. Y.; E. B. Cheatle, San Jose; Jno. Doles, San Francisco; M. Cohen, Newark, N. J.; Jno. Bowker, San Mateo, Cal.; Kwong On, Spences Bridge; Yee Wo, Melbourne, Aus.; Mrs. Julius, Collington, S. Aus.

—The Columbian says the late appointment of a Principal to the girls' school in this city has developed into a political controversy. Our contemporary, which is generally supposed to represent the Provincial Secretary, should further state that the whole school system of this province is run as part of the governmental machine, and that any spoke or cog asserting any independence is speedily removed and politicians heard each to be the "boss" of that department.

NEW METHODIST CHURCH.

The Corner Stone of the New Edifice Laid Yesterday.

The corner stone of the new church now being erected in North Victoria by the Methodist denomination, was laid yesterday afternoon by Dr. Sutherland, with the usual impressive ceremonies. On the platform were Dr. Sutherland, ex-Ald. Moore, of Toronto, Revs. Percival, Fraser, Sullivan, Groves, Bares, Dowler, Pollard, Mr. N. Shakespeare, M. P., and a number of other gentlemen. A large number of the church members and others had assembled to participate in the ceremony, which was opened by the singing of the 609th hymn followed by prayer by Dr. Sutherland, and the Lord's prayer by the assembly. Rev. Mr. Pollard read a scripture lesson and Dr. Sutherland then addressed the congregation, speaking eloquently on the character of the work they had undertaken, and impressing upon them the necessity of increasing effort to complete the edifice and place it free from debt. Money should not be wasted on outside ornamentation, for a church in debt was mortgaged to the devil. He enjoined them to be courageous and keep good heart in the noble work, and referred to the grand mission of Methodism. Rev. Mr. Fraser, of the First Presbyterian Church, asked the blessing of God to prosper the good work, which would prove another battery raised against the kingdom of Satan. Rev. Mr. Bares and Mr. J. P. Moore also spoke briefly, after which a tin box, containing a copy of the minutes of last month's conference, various denominational and local papers, Canadian coins, names of trustees, and of local and provincial officials, names of building committee, and a copy of the Bible and hymn book, was placed in the stone and the cap lowered to its place. Subscriptions in cash to the amount of $200, and payable hereafter to the amount of $1000, were then handed in, the Chinese giving $100. Dr. Graves then pronounced the benediction, and the interesting ceremonies were at an end.

The new church is being erected on a large lot with 206 feet frontage on the Gorge road. It will be of Gothic architecture, 57x31 feet. The walls are to be 20 feet high, of brick over a stone basement. The present building is only a wing of the proposed church, which when completed will be a T shape 49x30 feet. The seating capacity of the present edifice will be 300 people.

Alleged Theft of a Watch.

On the 3rd of March last, whilst the schooner Carolina was alongside in the harbor, a number of articles were stolen from aboard, and amongst them was a 4 oz. case silver watch, the property of Mr. Mattheson. No positive trace could at the time be found of the ticker, but it subsequently came to the knowledge of the police that it had been pledged on more than one occasion. Following up the clue, Superintendent Bloomfield this morning detailed Officers Grant and Lindsay to arrest Harry Burns, who had access to the schooner when the theft was committed, and who was suspected of the robbery. Burns was found in one of the Porter cabins on Store street, but as yet the police have been unable to track the watch to its present location. Burns is well known to the police, and has appeared under the "rag" act in the city Police Court.

Columbia River Salmon Pack.

The Oregonian of yesterday says: No new salmon pack estimates have appeared. The trade here entertains the belief that the Columbia River pack was about 525,000 cases, although no detailed estimate footing up over 516,000 cases is reported to be out. Trade is quiet, with no sales reported less than $1 02½. The outward movement is steadily free. For New York the Besse is about filled and for Liverpool the Birmah is slowly loading. No vessel is advertised ahead, and foreign shipments, after tonnage now in berth is supplied, promises light. A small bark has been taken to load at Victoria for London. Reports from the Fraser river indicate a pack of 120,000 cases, double the quantity expected two weeks ago. Cheap fish is proving a great incentive to free canning there.

Just Like Them.

The Mainland Guardian is very severe in its last issue on James Cunningham, M. P. P., for New Westminster. He is termed the "boss" of the city; that the government built a tank on Queen's avenue, ostensibly for the purpose of serving the new jail with water, but in reality to accommodate the "boss." He keeps the key and regards it as private property. The Guardian further asserts that the chain-gang are engaged in making a drain to take the water into his house, an act it says is sanctioned by the Provincial Secretary. It characterizes the whole transaction as improving private property at the public expense—a veritable noon-day robbery; but as the people here were born to be taxed the only present remedy is to be patient and bear it all meekly. A day of reckoning is now hastening on rapidly.

Encouraging Reports.

The reports that reach the city through private sources in reference to the Granite Creek diggings continue to be of a most encouraging character. A letter received yesterday from the mainland says that $400 was taken out in three days; and that some miners wash out $15 and $20 in an hour or two. The new mines are about seventy miles from Hope. The letter concludes: "This is genuine news—no humbug. Reliable parties told me and I thoroughly believe it. Each claim is selling for $700 and $800."

The Petrified Man.

It is now currently reported that the stone "figger," which has been the centre of attraction for some time, was brought here on the steamer Idaho, when she took the place of the Gen. W. Elder. It is not known whether it came among some household effects, or like the jewelry lately seized at Nanaimo, in a lady's stocking. As it was apparently a work of nature in some country, it was not dutiable.

The Official Investigation.

The enquiry by Captains Lewis, Devereaux and Mr. Vigor, into the late marine disaster was concluded yesterday. D. Stephens, J. B. Smith, F. B. Marsh and Captain Irving were examined, but nothing new was elicited. The evidence will be sent to Ottawa with the finding of the commission, and no official declaration may be expected for a month or two.

Hop Kee & Co.

The telegraph announces the failure of Hop Kee & Co., wholesale manufacturers of boots and shoes, San Francisco. The failure is placed at $300,000, but this is stated to be an exaggeration. The firm is recognized as a branch of the Kwong Lee house, but the representatives of that establishment on Cormorant street decline to state the actual connection or the real indebtedness and condition of the San Francisco house. The same combination or company are interested in several stores on the mainland of British Columbia.

J. Descouvillis & Co., Fort Street, Jewelers, have just received a large assortment of Montreal Filigree Jewelry. This invoice will be sold at reduced rates. *

CITY POLICE COURT.

THE THISTLE BY-LAW.

In the City Police Court, to-day, before Edwin Johnson, Esq., P. M., the firm of Lowenberg, Harris & Co., were summoned for an infraction of the Thistle by-law.

Mr. D. Harris representing the firm admitted that they were agents for the property in question, but that Miss Doane, the owner of the lot, had given instructions that the thistles should not be cut, hence the agents were not responsible and could not act against instructions.

His Honor said the by-law was clearly framed to hold agents, who might otherwise escape in the case of absentee owners.

Mr. Harris stated that Miss Doane was now resident in the city.

His Honor—The case had better be adjourned until Tuesday next, and in the meantime the principal could be dealt with.

J. D. Pemberton was also summoned for a similar infraction of the law. Mr. Edgar Marvin, occupant of the lot, appeared in court and stated that he had employed a man to cut down the thistles, but he could not state whether the man had actually performed this duty or not. It was possible that he had put the money in his pocket and had never gone near the place.

His Honor thought that in this instance the summons might be withdrawn subject to its re-issue and service in the event of the thistles not being cut down.

Summons withdrawn accordingly.

H. E. Crossdaile also summoned.

Officer Young, sworn, deposed that he served the summons at the defendant's office and that it was received by a gentleman who said that he would appear for Mr. Crossdaile. No appearance was now put in.

His Honor—Where was it served? Was it at the place of abode?

Witness—No, but on a gentleman at Mr. Crossdaile's office, who said he would appear.

His Honor—I do not think the service is sufficient. I cannot say that the office is the actual abode, so it would be better to withdraw it and serve a fresh one on Mr. Crossdaile personally.

James Macdonald, alias the "San Francisco Kid," charged under the Vagrancy Act, failed to appear.

Officer Walker swore to the service of the summons, and testified that he had called the defendant at the door three times, and that he did not appear. The defendant had been known to him about three months, and he was an idle person, without any fixed place of abode and no visible means of support. He sleeps in chairs in bar-rooms.

His Honor considered the case proved and ordered that a fine of $50 be entered against "the Kid," in default of payment four months' imprisonment.

The Court then adjourned.

(Before Sir M. B. Begbie, C. J.)

Matthews vs. Matthews.—In this case accounts which were somewhat intricate and involved, had passed between the plaintiff, John Matthews and his son J. P. Matthews. The plaintiff claimed as due him $636, with a credit. The defendant disputed this amount and claimed a set off. Judgment was given for the plaintiff for $568.71, and judgment for the defendant for $425.50, the amount which he claimed under his set off. Each party to pay his own costs. J. P. Walls for plaintiff and W. J. Taylor for defendant.

MARINE NOTES.

The ship Portia left Port Moody last night in tow of the Alexander, for Cape Flattery. She goes to Portland to load wheat for Europe.

To-morrow the tug Alexander will tow the Albula to sea, bound for Shanghai. Captain Pasmore, who was stabbed by one of his sailors, is getting better, and will proceed in the ship.

Chartered for coal, Nanaimo to San Francisco: Ships Harvester, 1494 tons, and W. F. Babcock, 2029 tons; for lumber, Puget Sound to Sydney, ship Kate Davenport.

The Nanaimo Free Press says: The ship Helicon, Capt. Howes, has completed her cargo of 2003 tons of V. C. Co.'s coal for San Francisco, and awaits a tug to tow her to sea. The ship Astoria is under the shute taking on a cargo of coal. The steamship Barnard Castle, Capt. Smith, arrived on Saturday night, and is taking on a cargo of Wellington coal.

Lively Competition.

The Tacoma News copies THE TIMES remarks on the subject of the future of the Canadian Pacific and says: There are strong indications, at present, of the lively competition for the trans-Pacific trade, as soon as the Canadian Pacific and Northern Pacific shall have completed their direct through connection with the east. The sweeping reduction which has already taken place in freight rates over this through line, brought about by the Isabel shipment, shows at once that the enormous profits of the former monopoly are not to obtain hereafter, when four competing lines are in the field.

Heard of Abroad.

The "stone man" affair has reached Chicago. A prominent gentleman in this city yesterday received the following letter from that city.

307 Ontario St.,
CHICAGO, Aug. 7, 1885.

DEAR SIR,—The Chicago Tribune this morning contains a dispatch from your place purporting to give an account of a remarkable discovery near Victoria. The "discovery" is nothing less than another "stone man"—a second "Cardiff giant" fraud. * * * W. DE H.

Presbyterian Church Burned.

The Presbyterian church in the Delta, on the Yale road, erected in 1881, was burned to the ground last Tuesday afternoon. The fire was communicated to the edifice from the flue that prevailed in the long levels adjoining the church, known as the Little Islands. There was no insurance on the building of about $1,200.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

Nearly a Collision.

On board Str. Adelaide, near Langley, 11 a. m., Aug. 10, 1885.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

SIR:—As there was nearly a very serious collision between the Reliance, bound down, and the Adelaide, bound up, the Fraser, and as it was most evidently the intention of the pilot of the Reliance to crowd the Adelaide into the south bank of the river, I think it is high time these matters should be attended to by the authorities that be, for notwithstanding these boats are running in opposition it is no reason that they should endanger life and property, which most certainly would have occurred had it not been for the able manner in which Capt. Odlin, of the Adelaide, handled his vessel. The Fraser is a public not a private watercourse, and Captains should at least allow good sea room when their steamers are bound down light.

Weather warm, and all on board happy and congratulating themselves on their escape from an uncomfortable ducking.

Yours, A PASSENGER.

The "Stone Man" Deception.

Light is brightening on the body of the stone man, so called and as such exhibited in this city recently on payment of an admission fee of 25 cents to the enterprising owner. Recent investigations made by the proper authorities go to show that the "stone man" was in reality a very poor imitation of the "Cardiff giant" who used to captivate the poor man's pence in England and impress casual observers with the idea that the giant had been a giant in positive existence. To-day a reporter of THE TIMES was shown a bill of lading of the Happy Valley giant. This was conveyed not from our Happy Valley farm, but from some other happy hunting ground in California, and the shipment shows that he came consigned to a man named Douglas, and that Customs Officer Franklin has a distinct recollection of delivering it to the person claiming it. So the stone man passed through and paid his entry. The detention of the steamship Idaho, on which he came, may possibly be attributable to the weight of the gigantic fraud, sold, it is stated for $1500. But a wag at our elbow intimates that he might have been smuggled to Nanaimo with the rest of precious stones found about the persons of Mr. and Mrs. Davidson who were detected by custom officer Peck, last Saturday morning. The Davidson party came from Montana which must have been an El Dorado for them, almost equal to the 25 cent admission stone man fraud. Officer Franklin is to be congratulated on his recollection and description of the importation.

A Great Demonstration.

A London special of the 11th says: The committee having charge of the proposed great demonstration here on August 22, on the subject of the Pall Mall Gazette's crusade, is about to distribute several hundred thousand leaflets, stating: "The Hyde Park demonstration is wanted, first to show that the women of London are not indifferent to the horrors perpetrated in their midst; second, to evoke a vigorous, constant and strongly fierce public opinion, without which, as Shaftsbury says, the most stringent law is impotent; third, to protest against the conspiracy of silence by which virtue itself is made the unwilling accomplice of vice; fourth, to demand vigorous execution of the criminal law amendment act by the authorities and the public; fifth, to insist on equal justice between sexes and to protest against the doctrine that what is lawful for man is criminal for woman; sixth, to make use of the present moral crisis in the history of the nation, to enlist the hearty support of all good citizens into the campaign against criminal vice of London, and evil, moral and social, in which it has its roots.

A Pretty Insect with a Hot Foot.

Lawyers are frequently pestered with all sorts of clients, and it not unfrequently happens that a character with "a bee in his bonnet" seeks counsel and redress at their hands. To-day a prominent barrister's office on Langley street, was besieged with honey bees. At first they were not refractory, but when a young disciple of Blackstone endeavored to convince the busy bee that a lawyer's office was not a place wherein such honey as they were in quest of could be procured they began to assert their power and in a few seconds drove the blooming young lawyer hors de combat out of the room. His face, neck and hands bear evidence of the forcible argument advanced by the bees why they should retain possession. It is supposed they are part of a hive that swarmed a day or two since from an apiary on Fort street.

The Island Railway.

Mr. George Reilly, paymaster for Messrs. Bell, Larkin & Patterson, is in the city to-day, and is making his rounds, leaving the "needful" with such of our business men as have dealings with that eminent Canadian contracting company. Mr. Reilly says that by this evening there will be ten miles of the track at Chemainus laid, and by the end of October thirty miles of their contract completed and ready for the services of the iron snorter. The entire contract is progressing very rapidly. The season has been a most favorable one for the work of railway construction.

Injunction Application.

In the Supreme Court this morning the case of Gilmore & Gillie vs. Fensom was heard. The plaintiffs allege that the defendant by placing a dam causes damages to their land, by flooding it. The injunction was refused on the affidavits unsustained and hence the case will come for trial again either here or at Kamloops.

Mr. Theo. Davie for the plaintiffs and Hon. Mr. A. B. Davie for the defendant.

The British Parliament was prorogued to-day.

M. McDonald, Chicago's gambling king, is a Canadian, and like Thos. Edison, began his career as a railway newsboy.
